Axis Regains Control of Salum in Counter-Attack

Garrison Is Holding At Tobruk

Luftwaffe Intensifies Air Attacks Upon British Isles, Mainly Birmingham

Syria Is Marked

British Will Attack Syria Soon to Ruin Air-fields

(By The Associated Press) The seesaw struggle for control of Salum, heat-ridden advance point of the Axis drive into Egypt, has swayed again to the Axis advantage. German and Italian forces were reported to have recaptured the town yesterday (Friday) after the British had taken it only the day before.

In their counter-attack the Axis forces were said also to have re-taken Fort Capuzzo, a Libyan frontier stronghold near Salum, and Sidi Azeis, as well as 100 prisoners.

However, a besieged British garrison still held out in Tobruk where motorized units were reportedly fighting back at German and Italian forces which have been hammering the town's defenses for a month.

In the western air war the Luftwaffe intensified its attacks on Britain last night by sending at least 100 planes over industrial Birmingham in a three-hour assault—the heaviest raid of the week. Two German bombers were reported shot down over England in the night.

The Royal Air Force centered raids on Cologne, railway and factory city in the Rhine valley, and over Boulogne, on the channel coast. Watchers in England said the sky was lighted by bomb flashes over the French port.

Syrian airfields which Germany might use as jumping-off places for a drive on the Suez Canal soon will be targets for all-out attacks by the Royal Air Force, informed Britons asserted today, as the question of French-German collaboration loomed ever larger on the world horizon.

Planes Already Attacked

German planes on air fields at Damascus, Rayak and Palmyra already have been attacked, but well-posted sources in London predicted Royal Air Force bombers would turn familiar Nazi blitzkrieg tactics to their own ends and endeavor to wreck landing fields in French-mandated Syria beyond use.

French sources in Vichy acknowledged that British planes had bombed Syrian airfields yesterday but a statement said these attacks were not considered aggression.

Quarters close to the French government in Vichy expressed astonishment at what they described as "semi-official declarations" in the United States indicating that occupation of French Guiana and Martinique was under consideration.

They said the United States must have misinterpreted projected French collaboration with Germany and expressed the greatest surprise that President Roosevelt apparently took Chief of State Marshal Philippe Petain's talk of collaboration "as putting French colonies at the disposal of Germany."

The London press was bitterly critical of France, the Times lashings at what it called "Vichy's act of betrayal" in permitting German planes to use Syrian air fields. The British government took a serious view of the situation, and authoritative sources pointed out that German penetration of Syria would put Nazi forces within 250 miles of the Suez Canal—ultimate issue in the conflict in the Middle East.

East of Suez, British forces were said to be hammering at Axis forces in Fort Capuzzo, just across the Libyan border from Salum, Egypt, which the British reported taking yesterday. London sources, however, did not regard the action there as resumption of a general British offensive nor as an indication that the danger of an Axis drive in Egypt was past.

In the western air war, German bombers gave England—especially the midlands—her heaviest attack in a week, while the R. A. F. struck back with blows at the Nazi-occupied channel ports and at targets in western Germany.

MESSERSCHMITT AIDED HESS ESCAPE

Disputes Continue In Shipping, Coal; Plants to Re-Open

West Coast Shipyards, Mine Area of Appalachians Embroiled in Fight Over Wages

(By The Associated Press) Wage disputes continued today in important west coast shipyards and in the Appalachian soft coal industry, although one of the biggest potential threats to production of national defense material was removed by settlement of a General Motors pay controversy.

Officials of the motor corporation said the agreement, reached at Washington yesterday, would give 165,000 employees, represented by the C.I.O. United Automobile Workers, an additional $35,000,000 annually in wages. The agreement included a blanket wage increase of 10 cents an hour over an average hourly base placed by the company at about $1.

Four G.M. plants at Flint, Mich., which had been closed through a misunderstanding by union men as to the hour of the projected walk-out, were expected to re-open Monday.

B. D. Kunkle, General Motors vice-president in charge of personnel, said the firm was prepared to negotiate with other unions holding collective bargaining rights. The corporation has about 250,000 employees in all.

The possibility of another shutdown in soft coal mining operations across as southern Appalachian producers and workers failed to reach a permanent agreement on wages. John L. Lewis, president of the C.I.O. United Mine Workers, said that unless an agreement was reached this week it might be necessary to call out the pits 330,000 men in the eight-state region. Wednesday may be the deadline, he said.

Northern operators have agreed to pay $7 a day, $1 a rise, but the southern owners, although entering a temporary agreement to raise daily wages from $5.60 to $6.60, have balked at wiping out a sectional differential and paying the same scale as in the north.

Departments Take Hand

The war and navy departments stepped into the west coast shipyard strikes with an announcement by John Frey of the A.F.L. Metal Craft Union, that James V. Forrestal, assistant secretary of the navy, had notified him that commanders of the 12th naval district and the San Francisco presidio had been ordered to assist in settlement of the strike in 11 yards in the San Francisco Bay area.

Officials of the Bay Cities Metal Trades Council and the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company, operators of one of the big yards closed now, said a meeting would be held Tuesday to negotiate a contract.

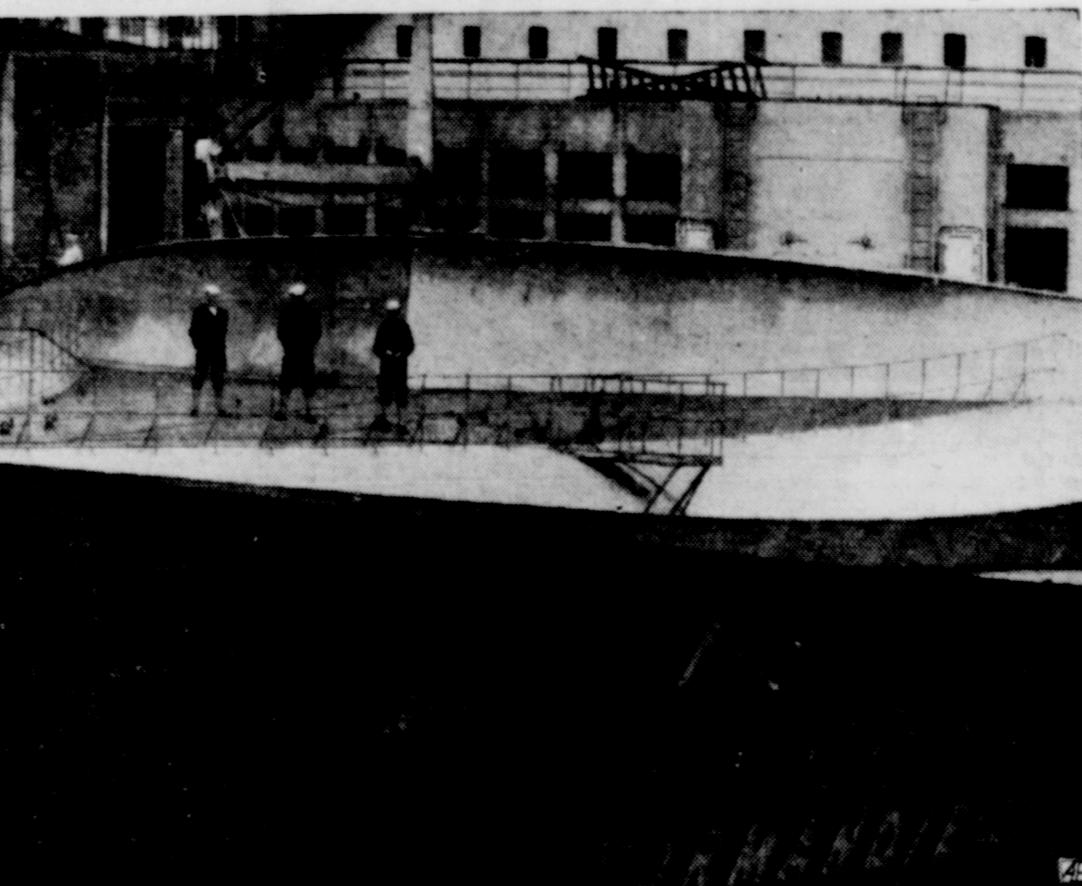

The shipyards' strike affects between 15,000 and 20,000 men, caused by a demand of 1,700 A.F.L. and C.I.O. machinists for an increase in wages from $1 to $1.15 an hour, with retention of double pay for overtime.

Location Is Central

The fact that during the period when the regional committee was arranging for the exhibit of the World's Fair that most of the meetings, for convenience, were held in Newburgh, prompted Chairman Fred Keefe in seeking a

U. S. Coast Guardsmen Board French Ships

While movement of German forces across French-mandated Syria toward Iraq indicated closer collaboration between France and Germany, and threatened a break in U.S.-French relations, coast guardsmen took under control a dozen or more French-flag vessels in American ports. Among these was the luxury liner, Normandie, (above) in port at New York city.

Murals Are Given Permanent Place At Orange School

Photographs Which Made Up Region 3 Exhibit at World's Fair Are in Newburgh Academy

Murals depicting historic places and important buildings in Orange, Rockland, Sullivan and Ulster counties, made from enlargements of local photographs and exhibited in the Region No. 3 Booth at the New York World's Fair, have been given a permanent location for local display on the walls of Newburgh Free Academy corridor and cafeteria.

Custody of these murals had been given to the Newburgh Chamber of Commerce and through Director A. C. Burnett of the Newburgh Chamber, arrangements have been made for their permanent location in the local high school.

Residents of Ulster and the residents of the other counties, incorporated on Region No. 3, are invited to visit the exhibits at their convenience.

When the World's Fair closed in the Fall of 1940, the booths were dismantled and the New York State World's Fair Commission was compelled to collaborate with the Nazi government now, there was a movement afoot in the country to again take up arms against the enemy when the opportunity came. These sympathetic Frenchmen, loyal to the "Free French" cause of General deGaulle, told listeners were bidding their time to rise again for France and crush the enemy and once again make France a free and powerful nation.

Although unable to speak English sufficiently to tell of their experiences in France, the two young men said that even though France was compelled to collaborate with the Nazi government now, there was a movement afoot in the country to again take up arms against the enemy when the opportunity came.

Seven Army Men Killed in Crashes In Southern Ohio

Planes Come Down During Violent Rainstorm and Within 15 Minutes of Each Other

Columbus, Ohio, May 17 (AP)—Seven army men—five in one plane and two in another—were killed as their ships crashed in hilly southern Ohio 15 minutes apart last night during cyclonic wind and rainstorms.

Army attaches at Patterson Field, Dayton, said today five men in a twin-motored ship from Barksdale Field, La., lost their lives as the plane smashed into a hillside near Nelsonville, O., 75 miles southeast of here. The other plane plunged into the ground 100 miles west of Nelsonville near Wilmington.

The five killed were: (First names and addresses unavailable.)

Captain Sonnenfeld.
2nd Lt. Wiedt.
2nd Lt. Griswell.
2nd Lt. Brown.
Sgt. Davis.

Davis' body was not immediately located in the wreckage of a basic combat training plane (Beechcraft) which was scattered over a wide area.

Precipitation during September and October, last year, the time when the evergreens make their growth and extend their root systems, was unusually low. September rainfall being less than half the average for the month and October making an even poorer showing, less than a third of the ground.

Smaller arbor vitae seem to have been especially affected although similar trouble is noticed among other evergreens.

Lack of Rain During Last Autumn Is Seen as Handicap to Evergreens

Lack of rainfall last fall is believed to have taken its toll among young evergreen trees in the city and vicinity.

Many trees, at least, have been affected noticeably by an unhealthy condition and in the opinion of David Burgevin, Fair street florist, the drought of last year could have been the cause.

Figures on rainfall in the Euphorb watershed last fall supplied by W. D. Hubbard, division engineer of the New York city water department show the season as predominantly dry.

out last fall along the south side of the Ruzzo building on Fair street is believed now in a dying condition.

Mr. Burgevin expressed the opinion the trouble was due to the dry weather of last fall when the shrubs should have been growing but instead were left in a weakened condition by lack of water and therefore unable to withstand the winter.

Berlin Warns F. D. R. Alienating Europe

Berlin, May 17 (AP)—Authorized sources said today "let President Roosevelt continue meddling in European affairs and we will succeed in uniting all Europe against him."

This was their comment on Mr. Roosevelt's statement decrying collaboration of the Vichy government of France with Berlin, and on his observation that, in the past, American warships have been used to protect American commerce and obtain freedom of the seas in distant waters.

In the German view, these spokesmen said, the United States president is likely to perform "for Europe" the same service which the French statesman, Raymond Poincaré, rendered to the German people in uniting them by his strictures.

Residents of Ulster and the residents of the other counties, incorporated on Region No. 3, are invited to visit the exhibits at their convenience.

Two Men Describe French Feeling as Behind de Gaulle

Guests of Local Legion Post Say Nation Will Rise Again to Stand of Importance

Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion, had as its guests last evening two young men who were recently evacuated from France through the efforts of the United States government and the American Red Cross.

These two youths, sons of an American World War veteran who married a French girl after the close of the last war, Joseph and Andre Kreft, are American citizens and arrived in this country from Portugal but a few weeks ago in search of work and also relatives in this country. Both are now employed at the Electrol plant here where work was secured for them through the Red Cross.

Buddy Poppy Sale Here on May 24

Annual Sale Is Sponsored by Joyce-Schirick Post,
No. 1386 V. F. W.

When President Roosevelt, on April 9, accepted the first 1941 Buddy Poppy from seven-year-old Carol Betty Wickman, ward of the V.F.W. National Home, Eaton Rapids, Mich., he launched the 20th annual nationwide distribution of Buddy Poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

The 1941 Buddy Poppy sale will be sponsored by Joyce-Schirick Post No. 1386, V.F.W., on Saturday, May 24, and by approximately 3,500 local post and 2,500 Ladies' Auxiliary chapters throughout every state in the union.

Carol Betty is the daughter of the late Edward John Wickman, who died in 1936. He served in the World War with the United States Navy. Upon his death Carol Betty and her two little brothers became eligible to the V.F.W. National Home, maintained by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States for the orphans and widows of war veterans. Carol Betty is one of more than 200 minor children at the home, which is one of the principal beneficiaries of the annual buddy poppy sale.

Since 1922, the V.F.W. has sponsored the buddy poppy distribution for the benefit of America's disabled veterans, and the widows and orphans of veterans. One cent from each of the millions of buddy poppies sold throughout the country, is devoted to the maintenance funds of the home. The balance of the receipts is spent for the V.F.W.'s local, state and national program of service and rehabilitation among veterans and their families.

POLICING THE BORDERS

It gives our people a sudden shock of reality to learn that the government is sending 200,000 troops to our outlying bases. These are mostly regular army men, but there are doubtless some national guardsmen among them—a distinction which is no longer regarded officially as very important. Troops are troops, and trained Americans of any designation now look pretty much alike to Uncle Sam.

This is quite a sizable transport job. As we read that the men are being dispatched "as fast as transport facilities can be accumulated," we start thinking a little more seriously about transports and what they mean, and what uses may conceivably be found for them before we emerge from the present world-wide mess.

The men now moving go to Hawaii, the Philippines, Alaska, Newfoundland, Panama and some outlying bases, or near-bases, that we haven't thought so much about. Greenland, for example, where there will be at least a small garrison. Bermuda, Trinidad and other air bases newly acquired will be manned as rapidly as possible.

These are the eyes as well as the arms of modern America. It is surprising how our outer fringes and listening posts and points of vantage have expanded. It is made necessary by the speed and range of modern warfare.

HOLLYWOOD ERRORS

We haven't seen the movie, "Argentine Nights," yet we can sympathize to some extent with the citizens and authorities in Buenos Aires who took exception to its Hollywood-made scenes. "As long as Hollywood insists on seeing Argentina as an incredibly ridiculous tropical country," said the movie editor of La Nacion, "no Pan-American understanding is possible."

If the truth must be told, this country, too, has suffered from Hollywood exaggeration. Pictures come out of the studios now and then that depict even life in the homeland in an "incredibly ridiculous" light. Entertainment is the rule too often in Hollywood, let the insults fall where they may. It sometimes leads producers to queer extremes.

There's no use getting violent about it, however. And banning the picture in Argentina will be useful only if it jogs the movie makers to learn more about the country and its people before they make another.

It will be fine if the widespread effort to cultivate better understanding with Argentina—and all the rest of Latin-America—leads to knowledge of their geography, climate and social life so that movie makers can draw on facts rather than their own imagination. In the meanwhile, may be hope that a few tactless movies will not be allowed to counteract painstaking and genuinely sincere work being done toward friendship and cooperation?

INDIANS' GOOD WILL TRIP

Americans of European stock may view with respect the good will tour to Mexico which is to be made by the graduating class of the Albuquerque Indian School. There are 43 boys and 30 girls in the group. Their president explains the trip as planned "so that we can better understand our cousins in Mexico, and they may learn something of us."

"These young people have raised every penny of the $2,000 which their trip will cost. The boys worked at CCC camps and for the Indian Service. The girls promoted various money-raising projects such as establishing a canteen and selling lunches. On the trip they will cook their own meals and keep clothing repaired.

"The sincerity of the plan and the willingness of the students themselves to make the sacrifices necessary to its fulfillment should go far toward insuring the trip's success. More pretentious expeditions may attract more attention but accomplish less."

WHOSE TAXES AND WHY?

Though it is an inalienable right of citizens in free countries to grumble about taxes, it isn't wise of them to try to block all tax legislation. When almost every tax proposed runs up against the criticism that "it will be difficult to enforce, relatively unproductive and unnecessarily vexatious," thoughtful citizens begin to wonder whether grumbling isn't being carried too far.

Most people expect to pay for everything they get for themselves. They expect to pay for services they engage as private citizens. In clubs and organizations they expect to pay dues and special assessments to maintain buildings and provide entertainment. In the biggest organization to which they belong, the government of the United States of America, they must also expect to pay for goods and services. It is right to insist that they get honest and competent service for their money. It is unfair to try to dodge taxes themselves and seek to have them all imposed on the other fellows.

FLOWERS

Writing about his garden and one thing and another, a column contributor says: "When my mother took over this garden nearly half a century ago, it was noted for its old-fashioned flowers. Now I plant onions in it. I think I could like flowers if I could remember their names. Some people know the names of flowers and birds and diseases, and like them all. And they like them because they can remember their names."

This last statement is questionable, but it may be true. Clever people who know all the flowers by their first names may deeply love them; and then again, they may just like the flowers, and like to talk about them, because the names come to their lips so easily. Some people are that way about history and fiction and music.

There are plenty of matters to be weighed and considered in our national policies today, but the possible objections of the dictators are not among them.

Nature invented parachutes a billion years ago, and gave 'em to the trees and plants for more sensible purposes than man uses them for.

If Lord Beaverbrook should suddenly drop down in Germany, how do you suppose the Nazis would treat him?

As part of our preparedness, maybe America should have its face lifted.

And now suppose Field Marshal Goering should fly to America, with all his medals on!

LOCATING CAUSE OF STOMACH TROUBLES

As a medical student trying to learn the cause of disturbances in the stomach, the three outstanding causes of disturbances were ulcer, cancer, and gastritis—inflammation of the lining of the stomach. Hence, the differences between these three ailments were carefully studied. The age of the patient, the sex, the time the pain or other disturbance occurred in relation to the eating of food, were carefully considered. One special point of difference in these three ailments was the amount of hydrochloric acid in the digestive juice of the stomach after a test meal—tea and toast—had been in the stomach for a certain length of time.

Shortly after this the X-ray was discovered and changes in the outline of the stomach and first part of small intestine were made visible to the physician.

Even with all this help, there were cases of stomach disturbance that still kept physicians in doubt as to their cause. It is in these cases that the new instrument—the gastroscope—is now giving so much help in clearing up doubtful cases. The gastroscope enables the physicians to look directly at the lining of the stomach.

Dr. D. C. Balfour, of the staff of the Mayo Clinic, in Archives of Surgery, points out that the gastroscope "has opened a new field and has proved that it is possible to obtain a satisfactory view of the inside of the stomach in almost all cases." Any method which would permit the physician to identify the different stages of gastritis (inflammation), to observe the circumstances under which they develop, to relate the condition of the lining of the stomach to the symptoms of which the patient complains, and to determine whether these changes in the lining are likely to develop into an ulcer or cancer, is a great contribution to more intelligent understanding of innocent or dangerous (malignant) diseases of the stomach.

The gastroscope is of considerable help in cases where the patient has undergone operation for ulcer but still has some symptoms present. In most of these cases the gastroscope has been able to show that no ulcer is present and that the symptoms are due to inflammation of the lining of the stomach and not to ulcer or cancer. This means that medical and diet treatment, not surgery, can be used in treatment.

Jackson Letter Shows Government Is Being Conducted by Bureaucratic Coercion, Instead of by Laws

(By DAVID LAWRENCE)

(Copyright, 1941)

Washington, May 17—Government by coercion, unwarranted by any statute, has been formally proclaimed. Instead of a government of laws, there is to be a government by the decrees of bureaucrats.

The evidence of this trend is to be found in a letter just made public by Attorney General Jackson which he states has the approval of President Roosevelt. In that letter—one of the most amazing documents in the history of so-called democratic government—the statement is made that threats of prosecution under one set of laws will be used to force compliance by business men with orders by another agency of the government which has no sanction of law at all, namely the price-control bureau.

Briefly the machinery set up is to put the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the department of justice on the track of any businesses which the office of price control thinks may possibly be violating an anti-trust statute. Conversely, the department of justice may have in mind will be submitted to the office of price control for its advice in connection with the price stabilization program.

The procedure admittedly is to "put teeth" into price control orders that do not have the sanction of the law. Maybe the objective is a desirable one—to control or repress prices—but as long as Congress is in session it might be supposed that law-making would still be left to the members of both the Senate and the House.

The idea that the citizens may be inhibited by the decree of any government officer without sanction of law has been abhorrent to the champions of democracy and particularly to strict liberals. It is much more in line with the Fascist doctrine that the state is all powerful and that a legislative body is superfluous.

What is most surprising is that when the New Deal wants to get after business men—and it is constantly spreading distrust about them and issuing threats—there seems to be no lack of authority and, if lacking, it is quickly supplied. But when labor gets out of hand, the New Deal says it is helpless. Even the suggestion that Congress enact laws limiting the right to strike are bitterly fought.

Labor is encouraged to force increases in wages which in turn cause a rise in prices. But the administration evidently is getting ready to squeeze the sellers of goods by forbidding price rises while at the same time looking with favor on wage increases.

Just how there can be any price control when there is no wage control is an economic mystery.

NEW PALTZ

School Notes

New Paltz, May 16—Members of the second grade of the Vandenberg School of Practice conducted a "bow sale" Monday in the Practice and Normal schools.

There were 350 bows on sale, the prices were from one to five cents.

The children were also active in making posters to advertise the project.

The money will go toward the "Bundles for Britain."

The third grade students have been writing letters to and receiving answers from third grades in Millbrook. Each child has his own correspondent to whom he writes about everything he has been doing.

The nature and English classes of the third grade have combined to make up an original story and poem on how the red headed woodpecker got his red head. The work is constructed with sufficient accuracy of description to be of value in nature study and with sufficient literary worth to be beneficial in the study of English.

The third grade children are also painting a wall mural in art class.

On Monday Professor A. B. Bennett, retired member of the New Paltz Normal School faculty visited the ninth grade English class to read poetry, which proved interesting to the class as they are studying oral speaking.

Our Contemporary Composers

By John Tasker Howard

Something like John Tasker Howard's "Our Contemporary Composers" has been needed for a long time. In a way he himself defined the need, for twelve years ago he published a book called "Our American Music: Three Hundred Years of It" which led to the current century and left the modern field in America untouched.

The new book brings the story of American music up to date—how up to date is indicated by the fact that the still unsettled Ascap war with the radio networks is mentioned. But more important than that is the manner of the bringing, and this, I think, is exceptionally intelligent.

Mr. Howard has apparently kept every line of information and criticism that has appeared. He has field all this, and has collected it. And then, to be sure that his material was accurate, he has put himself in touch with the hundreds of people he considers, and has given them a chance to add, subtract, or correct. The result is a book which could not fail to be of service to any person interested in American music since the turn of the century.

The author also has pretty well kept his own likes and dislikes out of the book. Once in a while it seems to me that he chooses a quotation (for example) which indicates his own feeling more accurately than it reflects general opinion. But this is unimportant; perhaps it is even better than a rigid "impartiality" might have been.

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER

Chapter 29
Quarrel

"WHAT are you asking me to do?" Martin asked. "I was a voice she hadn't heard, detached and businesslike.

"If you'd talk to her, or if that's too much bother, get your lawyer to. Or, perhaps your mother would."

"Idea. Mother never objects to things because they're too much bother, like me. Rather likes to see flying fur. Is your ultimate intention to get Violetta replaced in her job, Eileen?"

"I suppose that would be impossible, with Lewis at the head of things."

"Well, boards expect a man to handle things when they give him control, you know."

"I know," she said meekly. "I only thought perhaps you could get them to let her have the pension she'd have got to in a few years now. And, maybe, if it isn't too much trouble—"

"Skip it. Go on the principle that for once I'm willing to take responsibility. To the extent, say, of five minutes with a telephone, or a checkbook."

The car jumped ahead. She looked at the profile beside her. Lips set tight, head reared angrily, color ran up under the tan. She had not known that Martin could ever care about anything enough to lose his temper. Hers snapped up to meet it.

"All right, I will. She's going out with a black eye. Have Lewis give her testimonials or whatever you can in her position get?"

"She'll get nowhere—Theoretically. All sorts of gilt-edged stuff. What will have to be fixed is the real underground story that filters out through the board's feelings about her."

"I didn't know. I suppose that's harder."

"No. Personal interviews with key members."

"Perhaps your mother?" "Or my nursemaid Eileen. If it wouldn't chuck us into the embankment I'd slap you harder than you were ever slapped in your life!"

For heaven's sake, Martin, what ails you?"

He said, suddenly relaxed and grinning. "What used to be called quarreling like man and wife," I guess."

She said hotly. "That's a brutal reminder, under the circumstances!"

He shouted with laughter.

"What did I say?"

"I've made good time," Martin said, and turned the car into a drive between high rough-barked gateposts. Up between green lawns, where snow patches still lingered. It was dark, but she could see a wide porch and lights inside a stretch of living-room windows.

That ended that.

He said, after another of these silences that were getting more and more uncomfortable, "This is going to make Lewis annoyed with you. He likes to be seen eye to eye with you, know. Want me to handle it on the quiet?"

"No, I don't."

"Well," said Martin, "that simplifies things. I can go to it straighter." He glanced at his wrist watch. "We'll long-distance him after luncheon. Hungry? I am. But land's in sight."

Land proved to be the inn she remembered on their drive up to the Dane lodge. She had almost forgotten the ritual of waiters' devotion that was always loosed around Martin's kind. He ordered, as usual, perfectly. They made conversation across the little table. Quite pleasant conversation. Martin only had one cocktail. He never had taken much she remembered. Probably because of his sporting record. Unlike the rest of him.

"You're silent as the grave," he said, "and we're through. Come along, the fatal moment's a-ripened."

He had taken a room upstairs, as there was no pay box. He dropped into the armchair beside the bed-telephone stand to talk at his leisure. Eileen, at his gesture, perched on the bed beside him.

Action

HE LOOKED so boyish, such a nice kid, there with the receiver against his pullover, his long legs sprawled out easily and his tousled hair bent lead to the mouthpiece, that Eileen felt an irrational pang of pity. Irrational, for certainly pitying Martin Dame was pretty crazy.

But if only his dominant father and grandfather, his cause-hunting mother, had left him any job to do, he might be more interested now for hard, brilliant Lewis Delevan had had the luck of having to fight for his own hand in a world where, right or wrong, you have to fight. Martin hadn't.

And so he would probably be a pushover for the first few convincing sentences Lewis would offer.

He had Lewis immediately, by a number she had never heard. "Hello, Lewis . . . Feeling fine. On yes, we've been back a couple of weeks now . . . Thanks. . . .

Once there was a woman driver who went to Heaven. She knocked off one of the gates going in.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Surprise

Cape Girardeau, Mo.—When Mrs. James Allen, secretary of the Church of the Nazarene congregation, opened an envelope from the collection plate she gasped for the pastor to confirm her findings. Inside were a $500 bill and a $100 bill—anonymous gifts.

Bottleneck

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Speaking of bottlenecks, two four-year-olds really created one at an automobile parking lots.

Just to pass the time, they started to collect car keys and had 15 sets before they were detected.

Frightened by police, they wouldn't tell where they got the keys. It took the law an hour to straighten things out.

Mother's Helper

San Francisco—Mrs. William E. Mahoney was trying to explain to the judge why her husband had been speeding.

He was very tired, she said.

He was not feeling well, was in such a hurry to get home he didn't realize how fast he was going, and—

As she paused, four-year-old Anne Louise Mahoney put in brightly:

"Daddy was trying to see how fast his automobile would go!"

The fine was $2.50.

Excited Father?

Spokane, Wash.—Maybe the person who tried to mail a postcard in a fire alarm box had a good excuse at that.

When firemen arrived, they found this note written to a Seattle addressee:

"Baby girl born, weighs eight and a half pounds, is 21 inches long. I'm awful tired and cranky. Taking 2 o'clock bus."

Grade A-1 Teacher

Oregon, Ill.—Miss Ruby Nash is retiring at the end of the present school term with this record:

"Fifty years a teacher in Ogle county schools."

"Forty-two years a teacher of first grade."

"One day of absence, because of illness."

Doubles in Cinders

Moscow, Idaho (AP)—Dale Clark, University of Idaho junior from Bonners Ferry, is a baseball outfielder, and the other day when the ball team was idle, he was enlisted for the sprints and picked.

"Snakelist" Dooms Foes

To consign his foes to death a witch doctor in Botofogo, Brazil, has devised a "snakelist." On a sidewalk he placed a live snake in a bottle, which weighted down strips of paper on which were listed the names of 15 men and women whose death the voodoo doctor sought to bring about by this means. The usual means are the 100-reis stogie, yellow manioc flour, and the dead chicken at the crossroads.

Fashion Goes Rummaging in The Museums

By AMY PORTER
AP Fashion Editor

Any little cotton frock you buy is likely to be a museum piece—or related to one.

That's because, all of a sudden, fashion is art, and the country's museums, one by one, are taking it up.

The august Metropolitan Museum in New York unbent to the fashionable trend and permitted a show of fashions inspired by Pennsylvania Dutch folk-art in its Early American wing. Pretty models dressed in Mennonite "bird-in-tree" prints and Amish aprons and bonnets pranced against a background of art for art's sake.

Museum patrons looked startled, but pleased, to see how a dignified pewter piece had evolved into a tight-over-the-bosom, full-over-the-hips pewter print play costume for a fine figure of a girl.

Other museums have been fashion-conscious for some time. The Museum of Modern Art plugged fashions of American Indian inspiration, the Brooklyn Museum showed eighteenth century costumes and their modern counterparts, Cooper Union displayed early Persian baby clothes and baby shoes. The Museum of Costume Art, of course, devotes itself to nothing but fashion, covering all periods, all countries.

This season's graduates, like this season's brides, are veering away from traditional white and into colors. Several schools have chosen pale pastels for graduation. Styles are much the same as in other years—full-skirted, floor-length frocks in sheer cottons, preferably crisp dotted Swiss or organdy.

The working girl's summer is greatly simplified, now that the smartest town clothes are washable. Even some of the spun rayon has joined the safe-in-suspends group. Cottons bloom with new front and felt "corkscrews" falling down from the under brim. A navy blue model is fenced around with curls for which the brim edge is slashed at close intervals and rolled up.

Long corkscrew curls are fashioned of white organdy strips. Six of these fall from the back of a bakou straw shape in royal blue, "corkscrewing" their way down to the waist. Vivid shades like green, violet and blue, are among the paint colors going on wood shavings, together with dull gold, to fashion toques the size of tea cups.

If Letter-Writing's Hard A Hint To Learn Rules

The Paper Bigger Each Minute!

How huge a little sheet of paper can look when you've written "We're all well here"—and haven't another idea!

Letters stump some very clever people, so don't be discouraged. But do learn the interesting yet simple ways to write them or friends will lose interest in you.

A friendly letter is really easy. Gossip, talk about the weather, the book you read, the movie you saw! No matter how tiny the tidbit your friend loves to read it because it's from you.

Then ask what he's doing. How does he like his new job, his new town? If he's spoken of at home, tell him so! "Mrs. Taylor told us she met you in Boomtown—lucky woman!"

Don't let your letters sound rushed. To sing "In haste, Mary" is really insulting. Write "Sincerely yours" or "Affectionately yours." And, in writing to Mrs. James Burt, take care not to address her wrongly as "Mrs. Ruth Burt"—even if she is a widow.

Thank-you letters? Sympathy notes? Our 32-page booklet helps you write them, gives sample letters including invitations, job applications, many other types. Tips on grammar, correct form.

Send 10¢ in coin for your copy of GOOD LETTER-WRITING MADE EASY to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Diplomacy on Wings of Song

By ADELAIDE KERR

AP Feature Service Writer
Grace Moore wants to tackle something new in prima donna careers.

She would like to be a singing emissary to Latin America. Such a role, she thinks, has a part in the program of hemisphere solidarity.

"Artists can be the best emissaries that the government can send out as good will ambassadors," she told me. "Particularly the singers. Because music is the most emotional of all the arts and therefore reaches the hearts of the people. It's the masses who have to be reached today, not the man in the white tie or the diplomat. The salvation of the world will lie in being able to bring the masses together. The greatest medium for that is music. So in building

In the following example I think the friend referred to is being unnecessarily cavilling (or perhaps a better word would be stubborn!) to refuse to call a once-married woman Miss Mary Blank.

An explanation of details from Miss Mary Blank is this: "I was married only a few months and then left my husband. In due course I was divorced. As I had been a teacher and had been married so short a time, I went back to teaching under my maiden name and again called myself Miss

Grace. I have used that name ever since at all times. A man I know refuses to write me, introduce me or even ask for me on the telephone as Miss. He merely uses my two names—Mary Blank—without title, I think he is considerably more impolite than I am wrong. He says he is right and that he is merely following my advice."

Your friend is right about my advice so far as this: Socially and personally a woman who was once married is no longer "Miss." Professionally and impersonally she may be "Miss" if she chooses.

But this piece of advice concerns you and not him, and in my opinion he is unexcusably wrong in refusing to call you whatever you may choose to call yourself. That you are putting yourself in a false situation by using the maiden prefix in your personal and social life, is another story.

Losing Someone Else's Money

Dear Mrs. Post: When I visited my cousin not long ago we went to the circus. I had a small purse in my handbag with twenty-five dollars in it and I mentioned that I was afraid I might lose this. So he put the small purse in his inside pocket for safekeeping. In some way it wasn't safe and he lost it. This really means a good deal to me but I don't think he should feel that it is up to him to give me the money. He thinks it is and worries about it. What do you think?

Answer: I think, if your cousin persuaded you to give the purse to him for safekeeping, that the responsibility of making up the money is his. But if you asked him to take it, then I think with you that he should not be permitted to stand the loss.

Change of Scenery Seen as Aid to Major League Players

Bilyou Pitches 1st Recs Still Need Maroon Win Over Regular Catcher Ellenville, 10 to 1 For Opening Game

Locals Score Second DUSO Win of Season at Stadium Friday; Bilyou Allows Only Five Bingles

Coach Cliff Miller found a new starting hurler for his Kingston High School team Friday afternoon at the stadium when young Ronnie Bilyou took the mound and hurled himself a five-hitter to beat Ellenville 10 to 1.

Not only did Miller's decision to start Bilyou succeed, but also the team as a whole in gaining its second straight DUSO League triumph. The victory was Kingston's third this season.

Bilyou pitched steady ball from the first inning on and never was in danger, getting good backing by his mates. The mountaineers homped on Bilyou in the seventh for their lone tally of the fracs.

The Maroon and White representatives didn't take very long in putting the clincher on Ellenville. With three runs in the first two frames Kingston had an early 6-0 lead. The Millermen finished with two in the fifth and two more tallies in the sixth, the last frame in which they batted.

Joe Benjamin and Bob Dougherty sparked the locals with two doubles. Hank Stoll, Bill Gavis and Ronnie Bilyou picked up two singles apiece. In all Kingston collected nine hits but helped with four Ellenville errors, made the nine bingles count heavily.

Score by innings: Ellenville ..... 000 000 1-1 5 4 Kingston ..... 330 022 x-10 9

Batteries: Lepke, Baker and O'Brien; Bilyou, Shader and J. McConnell.

Pointing out that Bucky Walters won 3 straight for the Cincinnati Reds by scores of 3-2, 2-1, and 1-0, Tom Meany, in the New York PM, gag-of-the-months thusly: "Getting better all the time... The guy'll finally win one with fractions."

Club Will Hold Practice Session Sunday at the Stadium; to Play in Copake Falls 1st

The most important news concerning the Kingston Recreations is that the club hasn't found a starting catcher yet. Dickerling with Al Fabritius of Newburgh hasn't shown any progress as yet and it appears now that the club will have to look elsewhere.

Despite this, however, the club will hold another important practice session Sunday afternoon at municipal stadium. The drill will start at 1:30 o'clock. The Recs will open the season next Sunday in Copake Falls.

Another prospect was eliminated this week when it was learned reliably that Tony Ravigi, upstate catcher had agreed to terms to play this summer in the New York Yankee chain system. Mike Pessano, Marlborough receiver, has been with the Recs in practices and unless a "name" catcher is obtained, he'll undoubtedly be behind the plate next Sunday.

The Recreations also have been dickering for the services of Eddie Lyons who appeared here with the Amsterdam Rug Makers of the Canadian-American League last week. His other perfect games were scored in midwest and American Legion league competition.

In chucking his latest no-hitter, Parry explained "the ball felt light so I threw curves instead of my usual high, inside fast ball." Only three foes reached first base, two on walks and one on an error.

Good Control

A five-hit, 6-1 triumph yesterday brought his strikeout record to 66 in 35 innings. He is mighty stingy with free passes to first base, too, having allowed four in the five games he has worked this year.

A husky six-footer and weighing 185 pounds, Parry believes that drinking milk is a first rate source of energy for his "high, fast one."

"I drink three or four quarts of milk every day," he confided.

"I've had offers from about seven major league ball clubs," Parry disclosed, "but I'm not going to turn professional until I've completed my education."

Bob Parry of Buffalo High School Has Fanned 66 in 35 Innings; Receives Major League Offers

Buffalo, N. Y., May 17. (AP)—Achieving no-hit, no-run baseball games is getting to be a habit with 18-year-old Bob Parry, East High School fireball pitcher.

In his boyhood career dating back to 1936, Parry a senior, has pitched eight no-hits, no-run games, and his record this year in high school competition shows five consecutive victories, including his first high school no-hitter last week. His other perfect games were scored in midwest and American Legion league competition.

In chucking his latest no-hitter, Parry explained "the ball felt light so I threw curves instead of my usual high, inside fast ball." Only three foes reached first base, two on walks and one on an error.

Bell Saves Texan From K.O. in Ninth Round; Jenkins Far Off Color; Foe to Seek Another Bout

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, May 17. (AP)—Another shot at lightweight champion Lew Jenkins — this time with the title on the line — then a quick foray into the welterweight division where Fritz Zivic is head man — that is the program of Bob Montgomery, Philadelphia buzz-saw and the key-state's newest candidate for nationalisticistic recognition.

In Madison Square Garden last night Montgomery, born and bred a cotton picker, Sumter, S. C., took up where he left off against Jenkins some weeks back by handing the New York and California 135-pound king one of the worst lickings of his meteoric career — a 10-round affair in which the Jenkins title was not at stake.

Tuesday the negro's handler will go before the New York State Athletic Commission and formally challenge for the title. If agreeable, Promoter Mike Jacobs will stage the encore during July or August, either in the Polo Grounds or Yankee Stadium.

St. Colman's of East Kingston defeated St. Joseph's softball team in the opening day schedule of the Catholic Softball League last night at Loughran Park by the score of 5 to 4. Milti Berardi hurled good ball after a shaky start.

Joe Watzka's Homer and brace of two base hits by Tony Rua decided the game for the winners. Quinley suffered the loss for St. Peter's.

Score by innings: St. Colman's ..... 013 010 0-5 7 4 St. Joseph's ..... 120 000 1-4 8 5

A pitchers duel, featuring Joe Amato of St. Mary's and Bigler of St. Peter's was decided by successive doubles off the bats of Williams and Dougherty to give the former a 2 to 1 win in last night's opener.

Both hurlers were touched for five hits, Amato and Lenehan worked for the winners while Bigler and Raible formed the battery for the losing St. Peter's squad.

Jenkins came out of last night's melée with a bad cut on the nose, another on the right eye and a gash on the left ear. He lost seven of the 10 rounds and resembled more the champion of Sweetwater, Texas, (when Sammy Baugh is out of town) than the New York-California edition of the lightweight ruler of the world.

It was apparent from the third round that Jenkins sorely missed the motorcycle on which he did most of his training. He averaged a winning minute a round until the fourth, but from then on, with one brief exception, it was all Montgomery with room to spare.

The Texan charged in with a rush, but when his "Sunday punches" bounced harmlessly off Montgomery's jaw in the first three rounds, he wilted and was just another guy named Joe.

The Texan charged in with a rush, but when his "Sunday punches" bounced harmlessly off Montgomery's jaw in the first three rounds, he wilted and was just another guy named Joe.

Jenkins came out of last night's melée with a bad cut on the nose, another on the right eye and a gash on the left ear. He lost seven of the 10 rounds and resembled more the champion of Sweetwater, Texas, (when Sammy Baugh is out of town) than the New York-California edition of the lightweight ruler of the world.

It was apparent from the third round that Jenkins sorely missed the motorcycle on which he did most of his training. He averaged a winning minute a round until the fourth, but from then on, with one brief exception, it was all Montgomery with room to spare.

Battle for Power In Mediterranean Is Really Shaping

the middle east marks the spot where Hitler will strike with full weight next isn't clear. Europe expects him to make some big move quickly to offset the effect of the Hess flight to the camp of the enemy. If things move smoothly with his present venture, it is likely to grow swiftly into a major offensive. though simultaneous blows in other theatres doesn't cause surprise.

The way things look now, Hitler likely contemplates the pincer operation previously mentioned, an attack against the Suez Canal both from the east and from the west. At the same time, of course, he is looking to secure the oil of Iraq which he needs so badly, thereby not only putting himself out of a tight place but cutting the British off from this supply for their eastern Mediterranean fleet.

As it looks to me now, the German offensive from Syria is likely to rest largely in a heavy air assault, at least at the outset, with troops being used later for mopping up and consolidation if the attack is successful. This would seem a logical procedure because of the nature of the terrain.

In order to reach the canal and Egypt from Syria with land troops, passage must be made of the Sinai peninsula (where Moses received the ten commandments). The northern part of this bottleneck is a blazing desert. Troops can be moved across it along the coast, as I know from personal observation in the World War, but it is a difficult operation at best, and especially because of the hazards of attack from the air.

Thus it is possible that we may see an aerial combat on a large scale develop in this theatre, if Hitler pursues his offensive there.

France's colonies as resulting from a misunderstanding of French collaboration with the Reich.

Britain's moves also were watched closely after an official statement acknowledging yesterday for the first time the British bombing of air fields in Syria. The French declared, however, they would not regard the bombings as aggression.

A semi-official statement expressing astonishment at American interpretation of the status of French colonies inquired also about the "taking over of the Normandie and other French merchant ships by armed American guards."

Frenchmen close to Chief of State Philippe Pétain's administration expressed the greatest surprise that President Roosevelt apparently interpreted Pétain's talk of collaboration "as putting French colonies at the disposal of Germany."
